The Continent of Europe

The area of the European Continent is shown in white.

Find and mark Europe's farthest points east and west and draw vertical lines through them. Next, find the farthest point north in Norway and the farthest point south in Greece (the island of Crete) and draw horizontal lines through them. Now, draw diagonals joining the corners of the rectangle you created. The point where the diagonals cross is the center of Europe. The name at the center of Europe (where the diagonals cross) is _____
